MRS. WALDEN THREATENS SUICIDE. She Will Not Go to State Prison for Killing Her Husbaud.

Presented as a Memorial to the Det Wife of Thomas B. Kentor.

Mrs. Annie Walden, who was convicted on Friday of having murdered her husband, said at the Tombs yesterday that she would kill herself rather than spend her life in the pepitentiary. "I would much rather die in this prison," she said "than live in a peniten-tiary." Mrs. Walden said this when speaking of the following letter which she sent to her counsel. William F. Howe, yosterday:

Mr. Hows: I am very sorry to have made you much trouble, but I will end all. I cannot pay you for the kindness you have shown me, but I have prayed to God so much and so often that I am sure He will reward you, if not in this world in the next. I am not as black as I am painted, although I have been unfortunate and Thanking you very much for your kindness shown me. I will ray good by forever. Your unfortunate friend and client.

Annie Walder.

ANNIE WALDEN IN HER CELL.

ANNIE WALDEN IN HER CELL.

Mrs. Walden was clothed in riain black. Her face was pale, there were heavy bine lines beneath her eyes and her hair was tumbled and unkempt. When she was asked what she meant by the expression, "I will end all," she closed her eyes, sighed, and said:

"I have nothing to say."

Then she leaned forward and added:

"But understand. I will never go to the penitentiary. I have been treated unjustiy, yes, cruelly, by every one save Mr. Howe and Mr. Moss. Why did the District Attorney attack me? Did I ever harm him?

She said she expected to get a new trial. Assistant District Attorney Wellman, she said had kept witnesses, subpenaed by him, out of court. These witnesses, hirs. Walden said, would have cleared her.

"Why, the woman, Mahel, was waiting in the corridor to be called," she said. Jookey stovall was kept off, the stand because he could do me no harm.

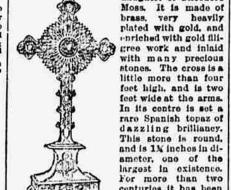

When Mrs. Walden was led back to her cell and the door was locked she laid her head on the table and wept.

Blew Out the Gas, It Is Supposed.

A countryfied-looking couple applied for odging at Hall's Hotel, Duane street and Park low, about 10 o'clock on Friday night, and, sow, about 10 o'clock on Friday night, and, after the man had written on the register in an almost illegible hand words which look like John Vigoria and wife, Washington." went up stairs to room 10 on the second floor. They saw out the gas or turned it on, and yesterday morning the woman was dead and the man appeared to be dying. At the Chambers litest Hospital they said there was a chance of his 1050 vary. It is supposed that the man came from Washington, N. J. ALL ANGELS' JEWELLED CROSS.

A beautiful Gothic cross, glittering with jewels and the largest of its kind in America will be placed to-day on the altar of All Angels at Highty-first street and West End avenue, of which the her. Charles F. Hoffman

The cross is a memorial to the deceased wife of Mr. Thomas R. Keator of this city, the daughter of Theodore Moss. It is made of feet wide at the arms. In its centre is set a rare Spanish topaz of dazzling brilliancy. This stone is round, and is 1% inches in dilargest in existence. centuries it has been centuries it has been a jewel, but its full, and probably interesting, history cannot be traced. It is of a rich yellow wine color, and has bundreds of facets, which reflect the light in every direction. In addition to this central jewel there are thirty-three others, scarcely less notable in point of size-topazes of various shades, ranging from an almost pure crystal to deep reddish and gointen yellow, and contrasting effectively with large biazilian amethysts of a deep purple his and garnets of glowing crimson. All the jewels in the altar cross are from the collection of Mr. George Frederic Kunz, made in Russia over a year ago. These jewels are set in the large standard, and arms of the cross, and each of the larger stones is surrounded by a circle of minor gems.

Inscribed on the front of the base is the monogram of the Holy Name. I. H. S. On the corresponding panel at the back of the base is a miniature of the late Mrs. Reator, with this inscription:

To the greater glory of God and in memory of Emily Extelle, Leloved wife of Thomas R. Keator, cutered into rest April 27, 1891. Presented to All Angels Church, New York, 1892. The cross was designed and executed by Mr. Louis C. Tiffany.

Tracey Knows of No Murder. James Burns, a canal-boat Captain, was arrested in Jersey City last Thursday night on the complaint of his brother-in-law. William R. Shupe, who suspected him of having caused the death of his wite. Annie Burns, by pushing her overboard from his canal boat. Shupe said the source of his information was a man named Tracey.

Capt. Stephenson of the Church street station arrested Tracey on Friday night. He told Justice Buffy at the Tombs yesterday that while he might have scared Mrs. Shupe with the story of the alleged murder, he did not believe that Burns had thrown his wife overboard. Burns was drunk on the night of the alleged murder, and Tracey thinks his wife left him because she was afraid of him.

Justice Duffy discharged Tracey. the complaint of his brother-in-law. William Made Vaccination Popular.

No new cases of small-pox were discovered restorday, and Chief Inspector Roberts said hat he thought the disease was about stamped out. He considered that to a certain extent the recent outbreak had been of benefit to the city. It had induced many persons to ask to be vaccinated, and had in a great measure dissipated the popular idea among the poor that the Riverside Hospital on North Brother Island was a place to be avoided at any cost. The demand for vaccine virus from out of town shows that the belief in the efficacy of vaccination is rapidly spreading.

Celia Wallace, one of the servants whose name was signed as a witness to the second will, which Mr. Dunton claims was forged by Scudder, testified that the will was not the paper she signed; that it was another paper which Scudder asked her to sign, and when she did so Mrs. Dunton's name was not signed to it. Scudder explained to her that the paper she had signed in the presence of Mrs. Dunton was signed erroneously. He further told her not to tell Mrs. Dunton about the second signature.
